Dear Mr. Sessions,

It is with great pleasure that the College of St. Thomas, with Honeywell International, invites you to participate as a panelist for the 32nd annual Hugh O'Brian Youth (HOBY) Foundation International Leadership Seminar.

The seminar, "America's Incentive System: The United States' Role in the World Community," will be held from July 27 through August 3, 1990 in the Twin Cities. The seminar will bring more than 200 high school sophomores from all 50 states and more than 20 foreign countries to our campus. During their eight-day stay these students, who have been selected to attend on the basis of their leadership potential, enjoy the opportunity to meet and interact with today's leaders in business, government, education and many other fields.

You have been identified as a potential panelist for one of the seminar's 21 sessions. We hope you will be willing to share your thoughts on the topic:

Crime & Terrorism: A World With A Gun To Its Head
9:45 a.m. to 11:45 a.m., Sunday, July 29
College of St. Thomas, O'Shaughnessy Educational Center Auditorium

You, along with three other panelists, would each give a five-minute presentation on the topic above; the floor would then be open for questions from the students. Following this 45-minute session there will be a 25-minute small-group session during which students interact more closely with each panelist.

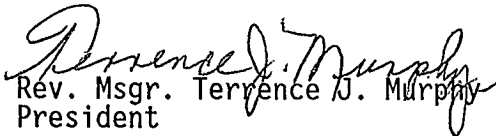

You will be impressed by the maturity and depth of these students, most of whom are high school sophomores and about 15 years old. Alumni of the HOBY experience often aspire to positions of leadership; they attribute their success to the role models they encountered in this valuable program.

I hope your schedule will permit you to join us. "Motivating Tomorrow's Leaders Today" is HOBY's motto; tomorrow's leaders have much to gain from your experience and insight.

I regret that we cannot offer our panelists honoraria or travel expenses; the foundation's success depends on volunteer participation. The student "ambassadors" - the young leaders benefiting from the HOBY experience - however, enjoy this program without expense.

Your earliest response, either by mail or phone to William B. Malevich, Dean of Students, College of St. Thomas, 2115 Summit Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55105, (612) 647-5235, will be appreciated. Please feel free to call him if you have any questions or need further information. We look forward to hearing from you.

REQUEST FOR DIRECTOR TO ATTEND
GRADUATION BANQUET OF 1976
LEADERSHIP SEMINAR ON AMERICA'S BICENTENNIAL SPONSORED BY HUGH
O'BRIAN YOUTH FOUNDATION

DETAILS:

The Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation, according to the enclosed background data, was founded in 1958 and has sponsored leadership seminars on various topics each year since that time. This year's topic is the Bicentennial. It has received backing from a number of national organizations including the National Association of Secondary School Principals and the United States Jaycees. Bufiles indicate that in May, 1960, Hugh O'Brian, well-known Hollywood actor, visited the Bureau and furnished information concerning this Foundation. He stated that its purpose initially was to honor 14 boys from Los Angeles County who would be selected by political officials and police officers for their meritorious accomplishments. Mr. O'Brian further indicated that this program ultimately would expand to include young men of high school age selected by the Governors of their states as worthy of recognition for outstanding deeds. This organization has not been investigated by the Bureau and we have had no correspondence with it.

The keynote speaker at this function will be the Honorable Sol M. Linowitz, President, Federal City Council. Bufiles contain no pertinent information relative to Joseph B. Danzansky, who is a prominent local businessman. Records of External Affairs Division indicate Director's schedule clear for the evening of April 9th and it is, therefore, believed that he should favorably consider attending.

What about this?

Dear Mr. Kelley:

The Metropolitan Washington Board of Trade is lending its support to the Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation by co-sponsoring with IBM the Graduation Banquet of the 1976 Leadership Seminar on America's Bicentennial. The American Revolution Bicentennial Administration is lending its support by coordinating the week-long agenda.

This banquet is the culmination of a week-long seminar being held in Washington, D.C. These annual Leadership Seminars started in 1958. They are sponsored and funded by the Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation, however, the selection of students to participate is a process of national and international competition by outside organizations such as the United States Jaycees, the National Association of Secondary School Principals and the Boys Clubs of America. The 80 students attending the 1976 Seminar were selected from some 500,000 high school sophomores from over 25,000 high schools. Enclosed is the week-long agenda.

On behalf of the Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation, we are extending invitations to a select group of prominent business executives and government officials to attend a Reception and the Graduation Banquet on Friday, April 9, 1976. The opportunity to meet and honor these young, outstanding leaders of tomorrow should be mutually beneficial. There will be no dais; the special guests will be seated at tables with the students. The Honorable Sol M. Linowitz, President, Federal City Council and former Ambassador to the Organization of American States will be the keynote speaker.

Please be assured this invitation does not constitute a request for financial support nor will your name be used for solicitation purposes.

The reception hosted by Reader's Digest will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the Continental Room of the Sheraton Park Hotel, with dinner following at 7:30 p.m. in the Sheraton Hall Ballroom.

The enclosed card asks that you RSVP by calling 833-6288. We would be honored by your presence and sincerely hope you will attend.

Sincerely,

Hugh O'Brian's Youth Foundation Gives Young People a Chance To Develop and Be Recognized

by John Johns

Reprinted From United Air Lines
"MAINLINER" Magazine, December 1975 Issue

From the 1974 seminar, O'Brian and Beatriz Armida Romero from San Diego, California.

Unfortunately, a very small number of our young people seem to attract most of the news. They are in the public eye because they have stolen a car, vandalized a school, in some way rebelled against society. These headline makers represent only a small part of our teenage population. It is a fact that 98.7 percent of our young people are law-respecting, constructive citizens. It is time we accent the positive—pat the good ones on the back—let them know there are rewards for being responsible citizens.

As the Wyatt Earp of TV fame, actor Hugh O'Brian used to do much of his motivational "patting" on people's heads—frequently with his Buntline Special. Good citizenship was thereby "encouraged," and the social order was temporarily restored. But that, of course, was Earp's style, not O'Brian's.

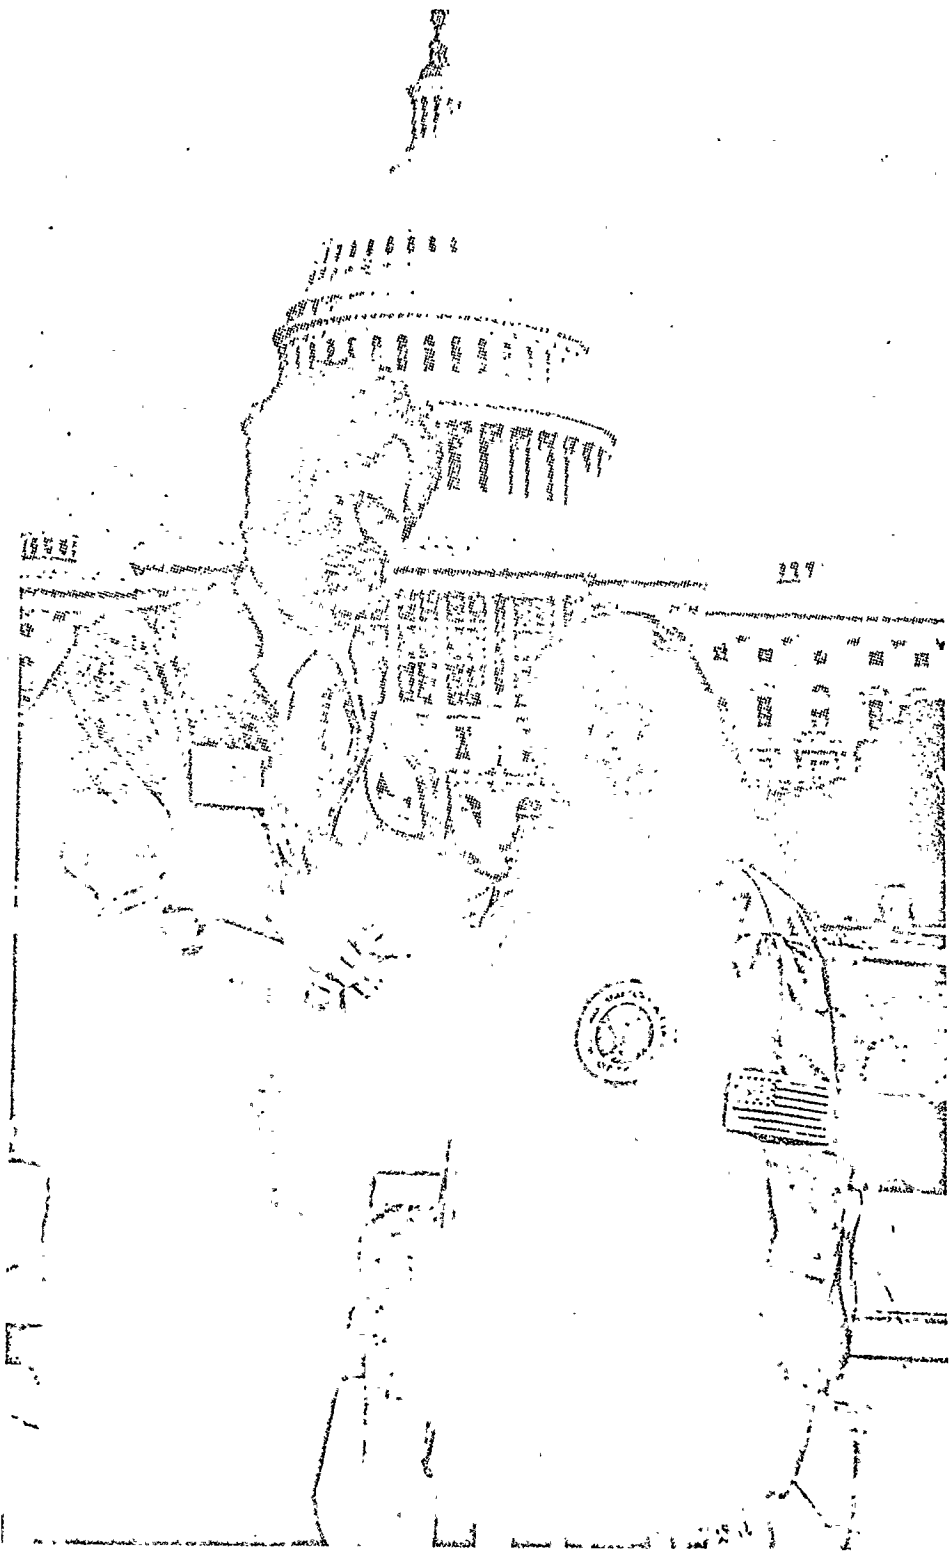

For the past 17 years Hugh O'Brian has been doing a great deal of constructive back-patting to encourage more permanent good citizenship. Since 1958 he has been the presence behind the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation, dedicated to "seeking out young people of sophomore age and providing stimulating opportunities for their potential leadership abilities to emerge, develop and be recognized."

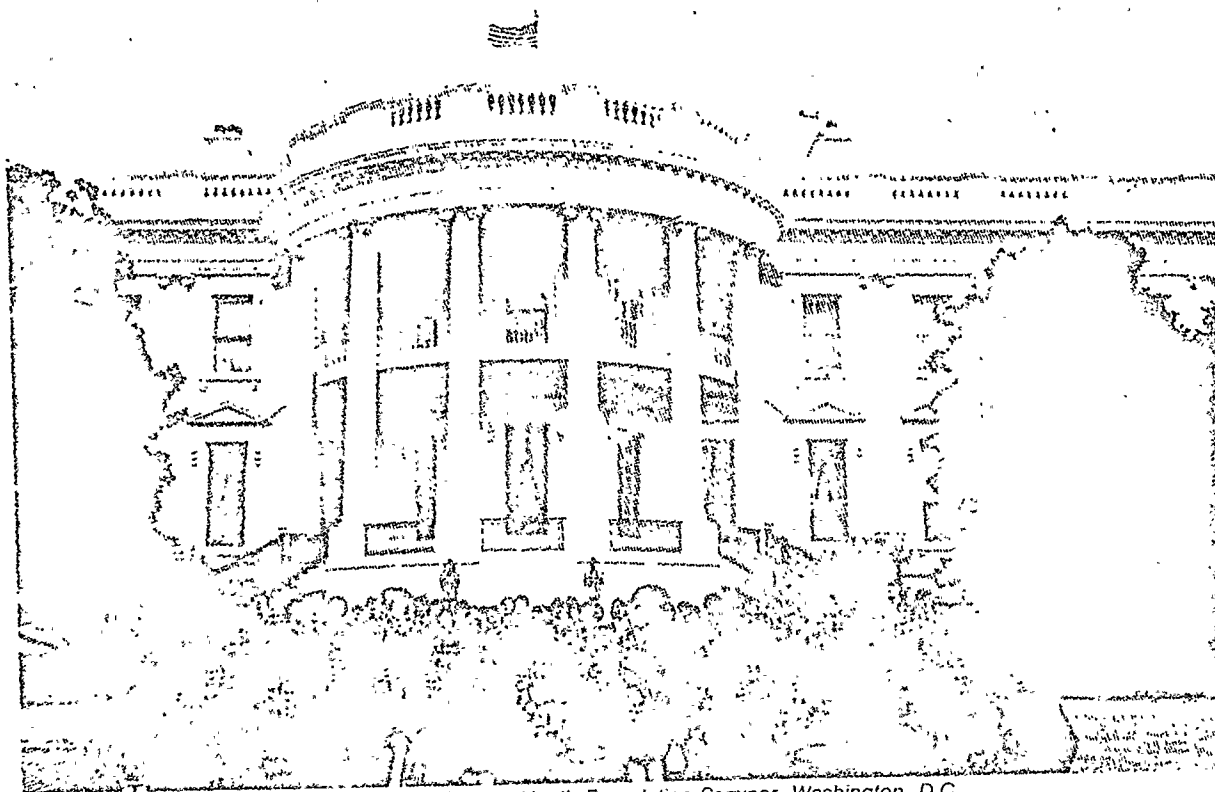

According to O'Brian, the inspiration for his involvement with youth was his visit with Dr. Albert Schweitzer in Lambaré, Gabon. Deeply moved by his experience with Dr. Schweitzer, O'Brian came home determined to make his own contribution to mankind, in his own way. He began in 1958 by organizing a yearly series of Leadership Seminars in Los Angeles, selecting high school sophomores with "emerging leadership potential" to participate.

I do not believe all men are created equal. Physical and emotional differences, parental guidance, varying environments, being in the right place at the right time—all play a role in enhancing or limiting individual development.

Dedicating himself completely to his "kids," O'Brian later expanded his Youth Foundation to include at least one participant from each of the 50 states, as well as a few foreign guests. He chooses sophomores, he says, because "these kids haven't learned to hate and they're not turned off to the system. They're not necessarily turned on either . . . but the time to turn them on to the democratic process is now." To acquaint his young people with "the system," O'Brian's week-long seminars have probed topics ranging from oceanography to the economy, to the space program.

The high caliber of an O'Brian seminar is exemplified by the most recent, held this past April in New York City. The 78 sophomores selected were flown to the seminar to spend a week, all expenses paid, learning about the economy. With coordinating help from the New York Stock Exchange, the youths heard firsthand from such leaders as former Secretary of Commerce Frederick Dent, Senator Jacob Javits, New York Times publisher Arthur Sulzberger and New York Stock Exchange Chairman James Needham. Over the course of the week, 38 major speakers from government and business addressed the seminar and fielded questions from the assembled group. As always, O'Brian's "kids" didn't hesitate to ask the tough questions.

... I do believe every man or woman, if given the opportunity and encouragement to recognize his potential, regardless of background has the freedom to choose for himself in our world.

O'Brian is currently hard at work handling the arrangements for the 1976 Leadership Seminar, to be held in Washington, D.C. The American Revolution Bicentennial Administration is lending a hand, and the Seminar will focus on America's past, as well as addressing the question of "Where do we go from here?"

On hand will be a high-level delegation of cabinet members, economists, government and media leaders, etc., to explore issues pertaining to government, economics, energy and the free enterprise system. Overseeing every detail—from the invitation of guest speakers to the contents of the box lunches—will be Hugh O'Brian. "There's nothing done that I'm not involved in," he says, "except the selection process. The United States Jaycees and the National Association of Secondary School Principals comprise the state selection committees."

In addition to giving freely of his energy and time, O'Brian has personally contributed most of the $45,000 for each past seminar. The 1976 seminar, though, will be covered by corporate contributions. Once again, the week-long experience won't cost O'Brian's youths a nickel.

Will he or she be a taker or giver in life?—Will he or she be satisfied merely to exist or will he or she seek a meaningful purpose?—Will he or she dare to dream the impossible dream?

Acting, of course, is still a part of O'Brian's life and provides him the influence and means to pursue his work with youth. As he puts it, "Show business is my business. It's how I make my living. But the kids are my life. That's my family. That's my home. . . . But what I'm doing is just a drop in the ocean."

Maybe so. But this fall some 300,000 young men and women will respond to O'Brian's grass roots overture to them. Whether or not they are selected, O'Brian nourishes the hope that they will see the "Establishment" does care about them; that there are rewards for excellence.

As for those sophomores who do realize the goal of participating in the 1976 Leadership Seminar, O'Brian feels "... they will return home with two years remaining in high school to motivate not only themselves, but their fellow classmates to bring forth and put to practical use their emerging leadership potential."

I believe every person is created as the steward of his own destiny with great power for a specific purpose: to share with his fellow man, through service, a reverence for life in a spirit of love.
Hugh O'Brian
"The Freedom To Choose"

And, in time, one man can watch and hope that his "drop in the ocean" becomes a wave.

Selection Process

Eligibility: All high school sophomores
Qualifications: Evidence of emerging leadership abilities, as displayed by capacity to inspire, organize or motivate others toward a specific goal

Timetable:

- Sept.: NASSP mails seminar information to 21,000 high school principals
- Oct.-Nov.: Interested sophomores apply to their school principal
- Dec. 4: Cut-off date for principal's selection of one finalist from high school
- Dec.-Feb.: State Selection Committee selects state representative and alternates
- March: Notification of participants
- April 3-10: Leadership Seminar //

Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation

132 South Rodeo Drive, Beverly Hills, California 90212 • Phone (213) 278-6700

Please find enclosed some information on the Foundation. Included is a program from last April's Leadership Seminar on the Economy, which was coordinated by the New York Stock Exchange.

I am sure that you will agree that in America today there is a need to conduct a diligent search for undiscovered leadership potential. The purpose of the Foundation is to accent the positive achievements of youth by identifying young men and women in their formative years and providing opportunities, through annual Leadership Seminars in a variety of fields, for their potential leadership abilities to emerge, develop and be recognized.

High school sophomores have participated in Foundation-sponsored Leadership Seminars that have provided an in-depth study of diversified subjects such as Political Conventions, the Space Program and Oceanography at key locations around the country. In 1974, the Foundation conducted a one week Seminar on Government in Washington, D. C. Sophomores are selected because they have two years remaining in high school to further motivate not only themselves but their classmates toward worthwhile undertakings. All sophomores are eligible and are selected regardless of gender, religion, ethnic or national origin through programs conducted by the United States Jaycees and the National Association of Secondary School Principals. The Principals' Association strives to have each high school in the country recognize a minimum of five leaders in the high school's sophomore class. From the group of five, one student is selected to represent the school at the state level, where the Jaycees coordinate the state representative selection process.

The profile of the students attending the annual seminars consists of at least one from each state and ten from other countries. The young people participating in the seminar are asked to do only one thing . . . write to Mr. O'Brian once a year on their birthday, until the age of 30, telling about their successes and accomplishments as well as their defeats and frustrations in reaching for their goals. In turn, Mr. O'Brian writes to them every year on his birthday. Through these letters, the Foundation will observe their development and identify new ways of encouraging our greatest natural resource - the responsible youth of tomorrow.

Aside from the annual seminar, a major effort is made by the Foundation and the United States Jaycees, along with various Government Agencies, such as the Department of the Interior, the National Institute on Alcoholism and Alcohol Abuse, the National Center for Voluntary Action, and the Bicentennial Administration, to communicate with the thousands of young students originally selected to represent their high schools. Each agency offers materials that encourage the students to work in their school and community on various projects. Although these students were not among those chosen to represent their state at the Leadership Seminar, each is encouraged to further develop their leadership skills as the student body representative for the above organizations.

Each seminar costs approximately $60,000 and since the Foundation's beginning in 1958, Mr. O'Brian has been responsible for the funding. We are tax exempt under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Service Code, and the Foundation is listed on Page 380 in the IRS Publication #78, "Cumulative List of Organizations." I hope you will find our work in trying to seek out, recognize and reward tomorrow's leaders a worthwhile project and worthy of your support.

HUGH O'BRIAN YOUTH FOUNDATION

Leadership Seminar on America's Bicentennial

In cooperation with the National Association of Secondary School Principals and the United States
Jaycees

Endorsed by the Council of Chief State School
Officers, American Association of School Administrators, National Catholic Education Association,
National Association of Independent Schools.

In association with the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration

THE FOUNDATION was established in 1958 and since that time has conducted yearly Leadership Seminars on a variety of stimulating subjects. The purpose of the Foundation is to seek out young people of sophomore age and provide opportunities for their potential leadership abilities to emerge, develop and be recognized. Participants are selected regardless of religion, ethnic or national origin.

The Annual Leadership Seminars are sponsored and funded by the Foundation. Although, responsible for organizing and conducting the seminars, the Foundation does not select the participants. To assure the broadest possible recognition and representation of young men and women, nationally recognized school and civic organizations assist the Youth Foundation by going to the grass root level to select the participants through national and international competition. Every high school sophomore is eligible to attend the seminars and is encouraged to apply. Mr. O'Brian says, "This age group offers a great return on the investment ...totally inspired by the Leadership Seminar experience, the participants return home with two years remaining in high school to motivate not only themselves, but their fellow classmates to bring forth and put to practical use their emerging leadership potential."

Mr. O'Brian asks only one thing of the young people who attend these seminars—that they write to him once a year, on their birthday until the age of 30, relating their accomplishments as well as defeats, their successes as well as frustrations in reaching for their goals. In turn Mr. O'Brian on his birthday writes to them every year. Through these letters the Foundation can observe their progress and discover new ways of stimulating our greatest natural resource ...the responsible youth of tomorrow.

YOUTH FOUNDATION PROGRAM HISTORY

During the early years, 1958-1967, Leadership Seminars took place in Los Angeles, California with students from the local area. Beginning in 1968, the scope of the Foundation's program grew to include national and international participants.

PARTICIPANT SELECTION PROCESS

Each September the selection process begins as each of the cooperating school organizations send an announcement of the forthcoming Leadership Seminar along with guidelines to the principals of our 21,000 public and private high schools. The principals are encouraged to make all sophomores aware of the opportunity to apply for the all-expense paid seminar sponsored by the Youth Foundation. One student is selected through a local selection process to represent his high school, and that nomination form is sent to the United States Jaycees. A chapter in each state coordinates the selection process with the assistance of a group of prominent citizens. At least one boy or girl will have the honor of attending the annual Leadership Seminar representing that state.

The diversity of backgrounds of the Leadership Seminar participants is assured through the inclusion of young people from other countries as well as representatives from the culturally deprived segment of this nation's society. This group will average between 25-30% of the total number of young people participating in the Leadership Seminar.

YOUTH: The Promise of Tomorrow

THE FREEDOM TO CHOOSE

"Unfortunately, a very small number of our young people seem to attract most of the news. They are in the public eye because they have stolen a car, vandalized a school, created a disturbance—in some way rebelled against society. These headline makers represent only a small part of our teenage population. It is a fact that 98.7 percent of our young people are law-respecting, constructive citizens. It is time we accent the positive—pat the good ones on the back—let them know there are rewards for being responsible citizens."

"I do not believe all men are created equal. Physical and emotional differences, parental guidance, varying environments, being in the right place at the right time—all play a role in enhancing or limiting individual development. But I do believe every man or woman, if given the opportunity and encouragement to recognize his potential, regardless of background has the freedom to choose for himself in our world. Will he or she be a taker or giver in life?—will he or she be satisfied merely to exist or will he or she seek a meaningful purpose?—will he or she dare to dream the impossible dream? I believe every person is created as the steward of his own destiny with great power for a specific purpose: to share with his fellow man, through service, a reverence for life in a spirit of love."

Dear Mr. Sessions:

Please let me invite you to speak to the participants in the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation International Leadership Seminar at The Johns Hopkins University on Sunday, July 23, 1989 at 9:00 a.m. I very much hope you would take part in a panel addressing the topic "Crime: An International Problem".

The International Leadership Seminar is a week-long program for outstanding high school sophomores from all fifty states and more than twenty foreign countries. It consists of a series of seminars on the general theme of America's free enterprise system. Interaction between the speakers and Ambassadors, as the student participants are called, is a distinguishing feature of the seminars. There are brief opening statements from each panelist, followed by a forty-five minute question and answer period. The group then breaks into smaller sections for about twenty-five minutes, with each speaker talking with the Ambassadors on a one-to-one basis. The whole seminar lasts approximately one and a half hours.

I hope that it will be possible for you to give us your time for this valuable program and ask that you respond directly to Ms. [redacted] who is coordinating the program, by Monday, May 8th.

With best regards,

Sincerely,

Steven Muller

Dear President Muller:

① Thank you for your invitation to be the speaker at the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation International Leadership Seminar at The Johns Hopkins University on July 23, 1989. Regrettably, I will not be able to attend due to my previously scheduled trip to Cimarron, New Mexico. However, I would like to offer an alternate speaker who would be available to speak at the Seminar.

If this is agreeable to you, please contact Special Agent [redacted] a member of my staff, at [redacted]. I wish you the best of success with the Seminar.

Dear Mr. Webster:

The Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation International Leadership Seminar dealing with America's Incentive System will be in Denver, Colorado, from July 31-August 8, 1987, with the University of Denver coordinating the program. A committee composed of a group of Denver's leading business and professional people, in conjunction with Mr. O'Brian, have planned the program which deals with subjects of current significance in the fields of economics, business, government and education.

We would very much like you to participate as a panelist in the program and make a five-minute opening statement on the subject, "Crime: An International Dilemma, A Local Responsibility," which is scheduled for 4:00-5:30 pm on Friday, July 31.

The presentation will be followed by a panel-student, question-and-answer session. The total amount of time for the session will be ninety minutes. We hope that this format will elucidate all aspects of the subject matter and encourage independent thinking and conclusion-making. High school sophomores, averaging fifteen years of age, attend the seminars. They come from each of our fifty states and from at least twenty-one countries.

All the young people's expenses are paid for by the Youth Foundation. However, there are no funds available for speakers' travel and lodging expenses.

Dear Mr. Smith:

Your letter inviting Director Webster to be a panelist at the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation International Leadership Seminar from July 31 - August 8, 1987 has been referred to me by Director Webster. I would like to express my sincerest thanks for considering him as a panelist. Unfortunately, because of the Director's nomination to become the Director of the CIA and the commitments which that involves, he will be unable to attend your seminar. Please, however, extend his warm wishes to all in attendance.
